

Visiting Assistant Professor of New Testament & Early Christianity

John Carroll University

John Carroll University's Department of Theology & Religious Studies seeks a Visiting Assistant Professor of New Testament & Early Christianity. Qualified candidates will be able to teach introductory courses in New Testament and early church history as well as upper-division and master's-level seminars in the individual's area of expertise. Ability to contribute robustly to an interdisciplinary minor in Catholic Studies and a graduate certificate program for theological educators is expected. Area of specialization is open, but preference will be given to candidates conversant with traditional historical-critical methodology as well as contemporary feminist, womanist, mujerista, queer, liberationist, and/or post-colonial approaches. Ph.D. in hand at time of appointment is preferred.

This is a one-year visiting position, renewable up to three years, with a 4/4 teaching load (typically two preps/semester), modest committee work, and no advising responsibilities. Applicants will submit materials online at <https://jcu.peopleadmin.com/postings/2445>, including a letter of application detailing interest and qualifications for the position, a curriculum vitae, unofficial transcripts, and three reference letters. Evidence of teaching effectiveness and scholarly engagement is also welcome. Review of applications will begin on April 18, and will continue until the position is filled. The appointment will begin in August 2022.

Questions about the position can be directed to Dr. Edward Hahnenberg, Chair of Theology & Religious Studies, at ehahnenberg@jcu.edu or 216.397.1674.

John Carroll University is an Affirmative Action, Equal Opportunity Employer. The University is committed to diversity in the workplace and strongly encourages applications from women and minorities, veterans and individuals with disabilities.