

CALL FOR PAPERS

CTSA Convention, Atlanta, GA
June 9–12, 2022

TOPIC SESSION/CONSULTATION: Christianity and Judaism Consultation

ADMINISTRATIVE TEAM:

Elena Procaro-Foley (Convener)

Nicole Reibe

Andrew Massena

CONVENTION THEME: “Thinking Catholic Interreligiously”

SESSION DESCRIPTION:

In the wake of the Holocaust and Vatican II, there was an urgency and energy around rethinking Christianity's relationship to Judaism. Much constructive theological work has ensued between Jews and Christians and meaningful interreligious relationships have been built, but the resulting progress has often not been in conversation with other areas of theology or local congregations.

In light of President-elect Clooney's articulation of the convention theme, the Consultation invites proposals on questions such as the following:

How might Christian and Jewish theologians address pressing theological and social justice issues by leveraging lessons from history, resources from their traditions, and contemporary theological tools?

How might Jewish-Christian theological studies and Liberation Theology be in dialogue with each other to foster progress in areas of shared concern?

How might Catholics and Jews think interreligiously about approaches to being together in the land of Israel?

How might thinking interreligiously move Jewish-Christian studies to engage in difficult questions concerning gender, race, and sexuality?
