

Stan Chu Ilo is an associate professor at DePaul University. He recently served as the regional coordinator for the North American working group for “Doing Theology From the Existential Peripheries,” a research project of the Migrants and Refugees Section (M&R) of the Dicastery for Promoting Integral Human Development. His areas of interest are cross-cultural studies, African intellectual and political history, African Christianity and the world Church, equity and diversity in faith-based education and ministry, religion and social transformation, and religion and violence.